A duel was fought in Virginia on Monday between Gen. Wise, a Demo crat, and District Attorney Lewis, a Republican, in which it is reported that the former was shot in the thigh and the latter in the left breast. The quarrel was about politics.

Greenville farmers have held no meetings to beg merey from the fer tilizer meu, and it is probable that they will not. The list of those who walk up, toe the mark squarely and pay in full is lengthening every day. The poorer they are the more honest they are.-News.

It is said that there will be a gathering of political magnates at the At lanta Exposition. It is thought that Speaker Randall, Ex-President Samuel Tilden, John Kelley and other no ted politicians will come down to talk over matters with leading Southerners. The "Gate City" will be kept alive for a few weeks.

On last Friday morning a fight occurred between two families, the one named Mitchell, and the other named Cooper, living on adjacent farms near Atlanta Georgia, about some chickens straying over the line, in which two of the Mitchells and one of the Coopors were killed.

A Chicago editor hears that Hon. Jefferson Davis, who is traveling in Europe, is suffering from an affection of the throat, and adds that it is a pity that he was not made to die of beron. throat affection from the entanglement of a rope just after the war. Suppose that some Southern editor had remarked that it is a pity that Garfield had not died of heart ache caused from Guitteau's pistol, what a howl would have gone up from the Stalwart Press! It may be well to re over prohibition, ending in its defeat, mind the Chicago editor that Jeff Da vis, not dying from sore throat was not lis fault. He asked to be tried, and if guilty to be hanged, but the United States government backed out knowing that there was no case against him.

Consolidation and Co-partnership.

The undersigned, after years of experience, finding that two papers can not be properly supported in Orange urg, and, desiring to publish a paper which will reflect credit upon the County, and, at the same time, be remunerative to the propriotors, have determined to unite their means and efforts, and consolidate the two papers which they respectively re present, and, for this purpose, have this day formed a co-partnership.

The consolidated paper, styled the TIMES AND DEMOCRAT, which will be considerably enlarged and improved, will appear next week, and, we feel confident, will give satisfaction to our patrons and the public, and become an assured and permanent success. To this end we promise our untiring efforts.

Further announcements as to terms and other arrangements will be made in the first issue.

JAMES L. SIMS, STILES R. MELLICHAMP. The President dead.

At last the appalling intelligence has flashed over the wires to every part of the country that James A. Garfield, the President of the United States, is no more. He died at Elberon, New Jersey, whither he had been moved from the White House, at 10.35 on Monday night. For sev eral days previous to his death he had been getting sensibly weaker, suffering, as he was, from repeated rigors. He had just passed through one of these, and specared to be in no very alarming condition, when Dr. Bliss asked him if he was feeling uncomfor table in any way. The President an swered "Not at all" and shortly afterwards fell asleep and Dr. Bliss returned to his room, across the hall from that occupied by the President. Cols. Swain and Rockwell remained with the President.

About fifteen minutes after 10 o' clock the President awakened and re marked to Col. Swaim that he was suffering great pain, and placed his hand over his heart. He said at once that the President was dying, and di rected at once that Mrs. Garfield be called; also the Doctors. He died of some trouble of the heart supposed to be neuralgia.

When it became known that the end had come the scene outside baffled description. Indeed a pall covers El Prediction.

The Greenville News makes the folowing prediction:

"The next Legislature will have its hands full. There will be a fight

There will be a fight over the repeal of the lien law, ending in the law remaining as it now stands.

The public schools will be tinkered at without accomplishing anything but a number of speeches.

There will be a fight over the constr tutional question, ending in the call-

There will be a movement for a short session that should be defeated for there has never been a time when mature deliberation and careful steer

There will be an assault on the rail roads, the end of which no man can

James A. Garfield.

The nomination of James A. Garfield by the Republican Convention at Chicago brought him most prominman. During the canvass, as will invariably be the case, many things with corn. It is not to be dried or were said of him which, whether well sound, gentle and quick, stored, but always cut green and fed were said of him which, whether well Buggy Horse. Apply to founded or not, we desire to bury in perpetual oblivion in view of the developments which time has wrought. In a political sense there are two points which are inseparably connected with this exalted name. In the name of Garfield is illustrated, even in the Republican party, a victory of the people over Grantism, which is the embodiment of sectionalism and peculation; and the unfeigned sympathy which welled up for him from every part of our Southern land during the calamity which overtook him, has brought out in its true light the real feelings nature and motives of the Southern people, and we trust will tend to hasten that harmony and good feeling which is so essentual to the happiness and prosperity of our country.

As a man, Mr. Garfield was not little in any sense. Providence,endowed him with liberal views, a large heart and a firm will. But, above all he was a Christian. A member of the Church of the Disciples, a sect of Baptists, he illustrated his Christian character more in his inward life and example than in outward observances and forms. In view of the exalted office which he filled, this feature in his character should cheer the nation. The example will be felt and the influence live for good.

Gen, Arthur.

As soon as the President died, Sec retary McVeagh telegraphed to Gen. Arthur to come forward and take the oath, and he is now President of the United States. Gen Arthur has been a politician, and has stooped so often that his reputation is far from being exalted. Still be has behaved during the President's affection, with becoming discretion, and we confidently hope that he will have the same good sense in conducting the affairs of the Nation in a spirit of conservatism, and not in antagonism to the interests of the people.
